Blooming on the Asphalt. September 8 - 8:00 pm

As Jack starts his gender transition process, Brazil is plunged into a wave of extreme conservatism. This intimate portrayal of Jack and his friends reveals a tender network of affection and solidarity that flourishes amid adversity.

Môa, Mother Africa Roots. September 11 - 8:00 pm

The making of the film began before Mestre M \hat{o} a do Katendê's political murder, a polyphonic and mysterious educator of Afro-Brazilian culture, capoeirista, and founder of Afoxé Badauê. Based on his last interview, the story intertwined with the rise of black cultural manifestations in Bahia.

Eskawata Kayawai - The spirit of transformation. September 14 - 8:00 pm

In the heart of the Brazilian Amazon rainforest, native people, the Huni Kuin tribe, are experiencing their cultural and spiritual rebirth. After decades of slavery, the Huni Kuin emerge from isolation and spread the story of their cultural heritage, spirituality, and transformation. Now, united as a community, they fight for cultural strengthening and for a return to their ancestral way of life.

It's not the first time we fight for our love. September 27 -8:00 pm

This documentary recounts the unprecedented stories of persecution and violence by the Brazilian civil-military dictatorship against the LGBT population and how this same group constituted its resistance, transforming itself into fundamental subjects of the re-democratization process.
